

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON

HIV PREVENTION TRIALS UNIT

MARCH 2004

Case Study

The Project:

HIV Prevention Trials Unit (HPTU) at the University of Washington, a partner in the global HIV Prevention Trials Network, is dedicated to testing the safety and efficacy of vaccines and other interventions designed to help reduce the transmission of HIV.

The Solution:

Bank & Office Interiors provided the HPTU with the delivery and installation of Series 9000 workstations with Options, Player guest seating, and 900 Series lateral filing cabinets for nine (9) Private Offices. In addition, a Vecta E-table and Turnstone Jacket chairs were used in their conference room.

B&OI also provided the HPTU with project management services. The project management consisted of coordination with the building manager, electrical and labor.
